

New layout for the Hymermobil B-Class SupremeLine

Bad Waldsee, 12 January 2018 – At the last Caravan Salon, HYMER presented a new model from the premium motorhome range in the form of the B-Class SupremeLine. The motorhome manufacturer from Bad Waldsee is presenting its latest flagship in the 674 layout at the 2018 Exhibition for Caravanning, Motoring and Tourism. With an overall length of under seven-and-a-half metres, the new body design offers a high degree of quality, flexibility and comfort.

Since the Hymermobil B-Class was launched in 1981, it has stood for discerning requirements in motorhoming and is now synonymous with integrated motorhomes. The new B-Class SupremeLine on a Fiat Ducato chassis now combines the know-how from the last few decades of leisure vehicle construction and is the first model range from HYMER to be built on the new and unique SLC chassis design. The premium manufacturer from Bad Waldsee has specially developed the new chassis for the B-Class SupremeLine. The SLC chassis is characterised in particular by its independent wheel suspension, the innovative chassis technology, its enhanced usability thanks to the spacious double floor, as well as its lightweight construction. Thanks to the low dead weight of the chassis, the motorhomes offer higher payload reserves and considerably greater loading flexibility as a result. The independent wheel suspension and a lower centre of gravity ensure perfect roadholding characteristics. The larger double floor provides space for installations, tanks, all of the electronics and even the heating system. In addition, the smooth underbody optimises the aerodynamics of the vehicle. The double floor also features a spacious through-loading compartment. Compared to conventional designs, the SLC chassis increases the total usable storage space by up to 400 per cent. For the bodywork of the 7.39 metre-long B-Class SupremeLine 674, HYMER is reverting to its tried-and-tested PUAL technology, which is completely wood-free and without thermal bridges due to the aluminium outer and inner skin, as well as the bonding of the individual components. As a result, HYMER is offering its customers one of the leading body shell designs in the industry, ensuring high insulation values, stability and durability.

Elegant and modern: the Hymermobil B-Class SupremeLine 674

The B-Class SupremeLine boasts a modern exterior and an elegant interior design. The redesigned front section provides the vehicle with a unique appearance, without forsaking the characteristic features of a HYMER vehicle. When designing the interior, the premium manufacturer from Bad Waldsee attached great importance to freedom of movement and comfort. The Hymermobil B-Class SupremeLine, available in the two furniture finishes Velvet Ash and Grand Oak, offers the right design for every taste. Combined with the white overhead lockers, the bright Grand Oak colour lends the interior a modern charm, whilst the darker Velvet Ash colour ensures a tasteful appearance. Tables and counters feature the Oriental furniture finish, which is reminiscent of precious marble. The comfort bathroom in the SupremeLine 674 is extremely spacious, featuring a generous WC area and a shower cubicle that can be partitioned off. The corner kitchen offers plenty of worktop space and makes the space even bigger with the help of ingenious solutions, such as the coffee machine pull-out tray with integrated capsule holder. Measuring 200 by 82 centimetres, both of the single beds are particularly generous, and the spacious full-length wardrobe has enough room for all of your travel clothing.

The new Hymermobil B-Class SupremeLine 674 will be available from dealers from May 2018.
